In the session, I provided psycho-education about CBT and the hot cross bun that looks at five aspects of life that are interconnected, namely: thoughts, moods, behaviours, physical reactions, and the environment, as described by Greenberger and Padesky Noluthando and I applied this to her belief of failure at school, and she then later said that she would like to try this in future sessions. You might also be asked to keep a daily track record of your temperature to determine when you are ovulating. Obviously this cannot happen if the partners do not share in some significant ways a deabsolutized understanding of truth statements. The most obvious difference is that some athletes prefer to jump off one foot while others like to take off two feet. There's a book I remember reading in the beginning of highschool.
